

NEW YORK AWAITS DECIES-GOULD WEDDING

UNITING OF AMERICAN HEIRESS AND ENGLISH TITLE OF INTERNATIONAL INTEREST

New York, Feb. 4.—The wedding of Miss Vivien Gould, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, and Lord Decies of London, which is to take place next Tuesday, is the talk of fashionable New York. The affair now promises to be more gorgeous and elaborate than was contemplated in the early plans. From present indications it will be the most notable affair of the kind that has taken place in the metropolis in a long time.

The ceremony will be performed at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in fashionable St. Bartholomew's Church in Madison avenue. Bishop David H. Greer will officiate, assisted by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks.

Lord Decies will await his bride at the altar with his cousin, Lord Alastair Graham of the Royal Navy, a son of the Duke of Montrose, who will be his best man. Miss Edith Gould will attend her sister as maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Emeline Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Holmes of New York; Miss Louise Cromwell, daughter of Mr. Oliver Cromwell of Washington; Miss Beatrice Claffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Claffin of New York and Lakewood; Miss Allison Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winslow S. Pierce of Bayville, L. I.; Miss Hope Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hamilton of New York; and Miss Hannah Randolph, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Randolph of Philadelphia.

Miss Gloria Gould, the five-year-old sister of the bride, and Miss Diana Dalziel, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Y. Dalziel, will be the flower girls. The ushers are to be Earl Percy, Lord Camoys, Phoenix Ingraham, Robin Gray, Robert H. Russell, Frank W. Crowninshield, Maurice Robinson and Anthony J. Drexel. Tonight at Delmonico's Decies gives his bachelor dinner, with his guest man, the ushers and several other intimate friends as his guests.

The bride will enter the church on the arm of her father, Mr. George J. Gould. She will wear a robe of white satin trimmed with point lace. The veil will be of point lace and will extend to the hem of the train. After the church ceremony the bridal party and guests will be driven over to the Fifth Avenue home of the Goulds, where an elaborate reception will be held. For the last week mechanics, decorators and chefs have been hard at work preparing for the wedding and reception. The town house of the Goulds has passed through an internal transformation, and has left the hands of the painters, decorators and upholsterers more magnificent than ever.

The bride is not yet 18 years of age and made her social debut only a few weeks ago. She is the fourth child of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, there being two elder brothers, Kingdon and Jay, and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., an elder sister. She has a brother and two sisters much younger than herself, Miss Gloria Gould being the baby of the family. Miss Gould is rather tall, slender and dark, with a richly colored complexion, and is fond of outdoor sports. Last May she accompanied her family abroad to attend the wedding of Miss Margaret Drexel, sister of her brother-in-law, and Viscount Maidstone, and it was during this visit that she first met her future husband.

Lord Decies is 45 years old and succeeded to his title a short time ago through the death of his brother. He is a lieutenant colonel of the Seventh Hussars and a member of the Distinguished Service Order. He has fought in many campaigns, serving against the Mad Mullah, in the Magdalen war and the Boer war. He is famous as a polo player and a cricketer and is keenly interested in hunting and racing.

The peerage of Lord Decies is an Irish one and does not carry with it a seat in the House of Lords. It was created just a century ago in favor of the first Marquis of Waterford's younger brother, William Beresford.

The members of the Beresford family are closely linked to America through marriage. The younger brother of Lord Decies, the Hon. Arthur Beresford, married Miss Florence Miller of Providence, R. I., and they now make their home on a ranch in Alberta. John George Beresford, another of the family, took for his bride Miss Emilie Iselin, daughter of the late Adrian Iselin of New York. Then there was Lord William Beresford, who married the American widow of the Duke of Marlborough, who before her first marriage was Miss Lillian Price, daughter of Commodore Clever Price of the United States navy.

CONGRESS GRINDS OUT POETRY BY THE REAM

EULOGIES FOR DEAD MEMBERS OFTEN BRING BACK SCHOOL DAY FRIENDS

Washington, Feb. 4.—The house is not so strong on the classics as it was in its early days, but it still retains a good working grip on what may be termed commercial poetry—that is, poetry that is always quoted on congressional change. There are certain favorite passages that appear in the Record so frequently that they are believed to be kept set up in type at the government printing office, ready to be incorporated in any member's remarks.

The house drops into poetry most frequently in eulogy sessions—those days set apart for tributes to departed members. It is then that members

Fire in each eye and paper in each hand, Rave, recite and madden 'round the land.

And it all goes into the Record. On those days—for the sake of economy Sunday usually is appointed—members come armed with typewritten manuscripts, ready to drop rosemary for remembrances, pantries for thoughts and all the rest of the garlands they have woven for the occasion, with the aid of the reference division of the Congressional Library.

It may be that the member doing the eulogizing knows no more of the subject of his eulogy than could be learned from his biography in the Congressional Directory, but it is enough. In fact, if their acquaintances were slight it is all the better, because it gives the orator the opportunity to work in this neat opening: "Mr. Speaker, I had known the deceased but a short time, during the brief term of our service together on the committee on the disposition of useless papers, but, sir, in that short period I was struck with the remarkable qualities of his mind. Ah, Mr. Speaker:

How fleet is a glance of the mind! Compared with the speed of its flight, The tempest itself lags behind, And the swift-winged arrows of light.

"But, sir, I would speak of other qualities of the deceased, for the impress of his mind remains upon the work he did here, and all must recognize it. I would speak of his lofty character, his stainless name.

Good name in man or woman, dear my lord, Is the immediate jewel of their souls; Who steals my purse steals trash; 'tis something, nothing; 'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands; But he that filches from me my good name Robs me of that which not enriches him And makes me poor indeed.

It is asserted that this is one of the quotations used so frequently that they are kept in type. When the foreman of the Congressional Record printing office runs across this gem he writes on the copy for the printer's guidance: "Throw in slug nine from Shakespeare gallery."

"Mr. Speaker, he came to this chamber but a few years ago from his loved state whose smiling plains and fruitful valleys had nurtured his early youth and breathed into his soul a yearning to serve his country in spite of the almost overwhelming democratic majority of his district. Yet, Mr. Speaker, when we seek to fathom the qualities and motives of a man we must go back to the environs of his youth, and he was a man who loved the woods and fields.

There is a pleasure in the pathless woods, There is a rapture on the lonely shore, There is society, where none intrudes, By the deep sea, and music in its roar; I love not man the less, but Nature more. (Slug 6, Byron gallery on stone.)

"With these sentiments he came to the legislative halls of his country, prepared, sir, to defend its flag, its heartstones, its heritages and its bulwarks. His ability was quickly recognized, and as I said a moment ago he was put on the committee on the disposition of useless papers. There he labored with intelligence and zeal, awaiting the opportunity.

* * * To take Occasion by the hand, and make The bounds of freedom wider yet.

"In the midst of these labors, and just as he had begun to make his worth felt in this hall, he was cut down.

This fell sergeant, death, Is strict in his arrest.

Soon or late we must all go to that bourne whence no traveler returns.

The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power, And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave, Awaits alike the inevitable hour. The paths of glory lead but to the grave. (Pick up Slug 12 in Gray gallery.)

"But, Mr. Speaker, how better can death find us employed than in the service of our country?

To every man upon this earth Death cometh soon or late, And how can man die better Than facing fearful odds, For the ashes of his fathers And the temples of his gods?

"And though he has gone from our midst his example will be potent to hold us who remain behind to the task he so nobly begun.

For freedom's battle, once begun, Bequeathed by bleeding sire to son, Though baffled oft, is ever won.

"With this slight tribute to my late colleague, I will close, Mr. Speaker, as I believe there are other gentlemen who desire to make remarks on this occasion."

KIT CARSON'S OLD HOME BRINGS $300,000

FAMOUS RAYADO RANCH ON MAXWELL GRANT DISPOSED OF TO DENVER CAPITALISTS

Trinidad, Colo., Feb. 4.—Kit Carson's former home on the Maxwell grant in New Mexico, Colfax county, known as the Rayado ranch has been sold and is to be colonized at once. By the culmination of a deal yesterday, the historic place, the last of the really big ranches on the Maxwell grant, becomes the property of the Hagdon Investment company of Denver. The ranch contains 32,000 acres and $300,000 was paid for it to Mrs. P. B. Abrean, widow of an old friend and companion of Carson and Maxwell. It was on this beautiful mountain ranch that Carson hoped to spend his last days. The Rayado river runs through the property and gives the ranch its name.

NEVER FOUND A RAILROAD MAN IN PRISON

MRS. FLORENCE E. MAYBRICK MADE THIS STATEMENT IN LECTURE HERE

"On none of my many visits to prisons throughout the country have I ever found a railroad man among the persons serving sentences," was the opening statement made by Mrs. Florence E. Maybrick in her lecture to Santa Fe employees and their friends last night in the Y. M. C. A. hall. This remark was received with applause by the railroad people. Mrs. Maybrick, who was incarcerated in a British prison for many years, discussed "Prison Reform and Kindred Subjects."

She described something of the ill treatment and injustice often given prisoners in the big penal institutions. Mrs. Maybrick told something of the conditions that lead to crime. She advanced the theory that kind treatment of prisoners, treatment that makes them believe they are responsible human beings and worthy of being given at least a little confidence, counts. Mrs. Maybrick showed where the present treatment of prisoners is falling short of its aim; that of making condemned men and women better citizens when they are released from prison.

The lecture was full of interest. Mrs. Maybrick is a woman of under the average height. She looks like a woman who has been obliged to suffer much but has borne up bravely. Undoubtedly she is doing much good with her word pictures of prison life and conditions; and that is her aim.

A STEADY DRAIN

Sick Kidneys Weaken the Whole Body—Make You Ill, Languid and Depressed

Sick kidneys weaken the body through the continual drainage of life-giving albumen from the blood into the urine, and the substitution of poisonous uric acid that goes broadcast through the system, sowing the seeds of disease. Loss of albumen causes weakness, languor, depression. Uric poisoning causes rheumatic pain, nervousness, nausea, cricks in the back, gravel and kidney stones. The proper treatment is a kidney treatment, and the best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is good proof in the following testimonial:

J. A. Jacobs, farmer, Clayton, N. M., says: "For years kidney disease clung to me and I was caused much suffering by pains in the small of my back. My kidneys were weak and I was obliged to arise at night to pass the kidney secretions. It required the contents of only one box of Doan's Kidney Pills to relieve me and now have but little trouble from my kidneys."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

When her child is in danger a woman will risk her life to protect it. No great act of heroism or risk of life is necessary to protect a child from croup. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and all danger is avoided. For sale by all druggists.
